

Yale a 21-3 Winner Over Penn in Mud

By WILLIAM N. WALLACE

Special to The New York Times

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8—Yale remained in contention for the Ivy League championship today by defeating Pennsylvania, 21-3, for its fourth league victory in five games. A muddy field cut down on player maneuverability and the contest had few exciting or suspenseful moments for the crowd of 33,545, about half of whom were youngsters attending as guests of the New Haven Jaycees.

The playing surface of the Yale Bowl proved to be far from waterproof, although it was covered during yesterday's heavy rain. The field, described by Don Maynard of the Jets as "a cow pasture," and one with a turf problem, was slick and muddy although the sun shone

Continued on Page 4, Column 4

The New York Times

Published: November 9, 1969

Copyright © The New York Times

YALE 21-3 WINNER OVER PENN IN MUD

Continued From Page 1

throughout the game.

The running backs suffered the most, as they could not cut. This was particularly true for Don Martin, the Yale sprinter whose fast feet need a dry track. So the game supported Yale's desire to install synthetic turf in its 55-year-old stadium.

Ford Goes 77 Yards

Joe Massey, Yale's quarterback, threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Bob Milligan in the first period after Eliot Berry had kicked a 35-yard field goal for Penn. Yale scored twice in the third quarter, Martin racing 20 yards for a score and Jack Ford, a defensive back, returning an intercepted pass 77 yards.

The Elis intercepted four of the 25 passes thrown by John Brown, the hard-pressed Penn quarterback. Brown, Penn's fifth quarterback this season, was a defensive back until he moved to offense against Harvard last Saturday.

He tried hard today against Yale's strong defensive unit, which threw him several times for losses totaling 43 yards. Penn's rushing game accounted for only two first downs and a net of 11 yards gained.

The closest Penn came to the Yale goal was the Eli 16-yard line in the first period and the 7 in the fourth. The Quakers were thrown back in the first instance and Berry contributed his field goal. The best placement kicker in the Ivy League, Berry is a squash player from Choate School who wears glasses under the front of his helmet.

Jim Greene returned a punt by Milligan to the Eli 7 as the game ended. He was tackled by a Yale man, but was surround-

Statistics of the Game

	Yale	Penn
First downs . . . . .	9	9
Rushing yardage . . . . .	68	11
Passing yardage . . . . .	112	139
Return yardage . . . . .	142	88
Passes . . . . .	15-28	12-25
Interceptions by . . . . .	4	1
Punts . . . . .	9-30	10-28
Fumbles lost . . . . .	1	0
Yards penalized . . . . .	25	25

ed by youngsters on the field prematurely.

Massey completed 12 of 21 passes before Chuck Sizemore replaced him in the third quarter with the outcome in hand.

The Eli reserves missed two good scoring opportunities in the final quarter.

Martin's touchdown run was the most notable offensive play of the game and Ford's interception return was the defensive gem.

Martin took an option pitchback from Massey while both were running wide. It is one of the favorite Yale plays that has worked well all season. But it had failed earlier today on the muddy turf. Martin found himself running on good green grass at the edge of the field beyond the mud and when he saw a shaft of daylight he sprinted into the end zone—zoom!

Ford, a clever rover back, picked off Brown's pass at his 22 and went across the field to the sideline and then downfield, escorted by Joe Roberti.

Penn's best weapon was its tall sophomore end, Pete Luciano, who caught five passes for 81 yards. The Red and Blue defensive corps played a game to be proud of but the offense was mired all afternoon. It was Penn's fourth loss in five Ivy games.

Yale next plays Princeton, the Ivy co-leader with Dartmouth.

Yale . . . . .	7	0	14	0-21
Penn . . . . .	0	3	0	0-3
Penn.—FG, Berry, 35.
Yale—Milligan 11, pass from Massey (Klebanoff, kick).
Yale—Martin, 20, run (Klebanoff, kick).
Yale—Ford, 77, intercepted pass (Klebanoff, kick).
Attendance—33,545.				